GETTING MARRIED?
EXPLORE YOUR HSA OPTIONS

Getting married is a big life change. If you're like many couples just starting out, you might be looking for ways to make the most of your monthly income.

A Health Savings Account

(HSA) is a great budgeting tool. That's because you can use your HSA to save hundreds of dollars a year — or more — by setting aside pre-tax dollars for qualified healthcare expenses, including everyday wellness essentials you're probably buying anyway.

How it works

An HSA lets you set aside pre-tax dollars so you can save on qualified health expenses — including everyday health products, prescriptions, doctor visits and much more. With an estimated 30% in tax savings, it's a great way to effectively increase your take-home pay.*

Health benefit = budget benefit

To contribute to an HSA, you must be covered under an HSA-qualified high deductible health plan (HDHP). You decide how much you want to contribute to your HSA each year, up to the IRS-allowed limit. (For 2023, the limit is $3,850 for an individual, and $7,750 for a family.) HSA benefits extend to spouses and dependents, so if you just got married, you may want to consider increasing your contribution and getting even more value out of your account.
